MEDIA RELEASE

The Adelaide Plains Council is joining in the celebrations for this year's National Volunteer Week – 8 to 14 May 2017.

6 April 2017

The Adelaide Plains Council is once again joining in the celebrations for the National Volunteer Week with holding free movie screenings on Tuesday, 9 May 2017. Council wishes to acknowledge and thank our many valued local volunteers who provide a variety of essential community, environmental, sporting and cultural services.

During National Volunteer Week (from 8 to 14 May 2017), thousands of events will be held across the country to say thank you to the six million Australians volunteers who generously donate their time.

On Tuesday, 9 May 2017 our volunteers will be invited to attend one of the free movie sessions at the Gawler Cinemas (11 Murray Street, Gawler). In the morning the film "Hidden Figures" will be shown – the story of a team of African-American women mathematicians who play a vital role in NASA, during the early years of the United State Space Program. Before the film starts, morning tea will be served at 10 am. The evening film featured is a comedy "Going in Style", starring Morgan Freeman which shows how three life long friends who are desperate to pay their bills embark on a daring bid to rob the bank that actually absconded with their money. Refreshments will be served at 6.30 pm before the commencement of the film.

It is essential to book your seats with Anne Sawtell, Library Coordinator at the Council Office during opening hours on 8527 0200 or alternatively email – info@apc.sa.gov.au - as seats are strictly limited.
